

ePortfolios:

1 What's it?

A collection of digital assets or artefacts, that evidences the development of student learning, knowledge, skills and abilities over time.

2 Why it is important?

The flexible and personal nature of ePortfolios enhances opportunities for students to demonstrate formal and informal learning and to be active in their transition to employment after graduation.

3 What is it used for?

- reflection and personal development,
- assessment, e.g. work integrated learning activities,
- collaboration with peers and external professionals,
- work experiences, academic activities and career development.

4 Purpose and audience

ePortfolios can be used to support:

- Developmental ePortfolios highlight achievements and milestones in personal and/or learning development.
- Assessment ePortfolios can be used to collect together student assessment tasks.
- Career development ePortfolios showcase examples of projects and work or evidence management skills, e.g. through critical reflection to potential employers.

Reference:

http://www1.rmit.edu.au/browse;ID=075sqig1pgj0z;STATUS=A;PAGE_AUTHOR=Kate%20Ebbott;SECTION=4;